

Food Source approaches Farmer Mack about a new initiative to get people more involved in local agriculture.

Mack helps the Food Source put his farm sign up on a busy street in town.

Community members notice the sign and start thinking more about local agriculture and from where their food comes.

People start to search for farms indicated on the signs, and Farmer Mack sees an influx of people at his market interested in learning more.