

Farmer Mack works with Food Source to plant vegetable seedlings in residential neighborhoods in town.

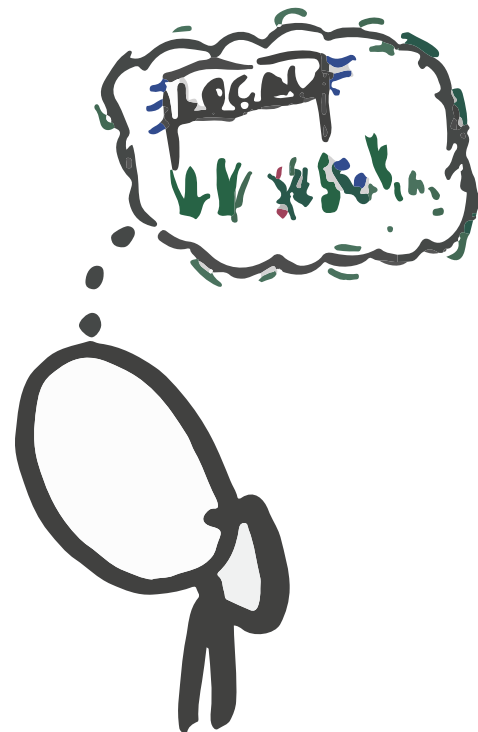

Along with his veggies he hangs a sign with his name, farm, pictures, and favorite quote on it so passers by know more about him and his ideas.

People living in the community start to notice the new vegetables on their daily commutes.

This gets the community thinking about where their food comes from and if they can grow their own vegetables or buy them more locally

Community members start visiting Macks farm for local food, and Mack has a chance to spread his ideas and create a community
